Steps to Deciding on a Career

Deciding to further your education is the first step toward accomplishing a career goal. However, deciding which career is right for you can sometimes be a difficult decision to make. To help you make a career decision, the College has several resources for you to use.

First, the career decision making computer program called Choices is available to you free of charge. This easy-to-use program has information regarding career descriptions, ability and interest inventories, college majors and university listings. The Choices program is easy to access. It is available on any computer in the Student Support Services lab (room 116 Learning Resource Center) and also in the Learning Lab (room 110 LRC) and CAP Center (101 JHG). Tutors are available in each lab to help you get started.

Once you have done some career exploration, you may want some further information or just need to talk to someone about your decision. The CAP Center (room 101 JHG building) is there to help. There are many printed resources to help you further investigate a possible career. You can get access to the Internet to further explore universities you may wish to transfer to in order to complete a bachelor's degree. Whatever your need, the CAP Center is here to help you plan for the future.

Whatever your need, Madisonville Community College is working to help you reach your educational and career goals.
